Richard Rosendale Wins Bocuse d'Or USA

Winner Richard Rosendale and his commis, Corey Siegel

By Kelly Dobkin

Richard Rosendale, a certified master chef and executive chef of The Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia was declared the winner of the Bocuse d'Or USA yesterday afternoon in Hyde Park. Rosendale will represent the U.S. in Lyon with his commis Corey Siegel in the Bocuse d'Or world competition in 2013 after an extensive year-long training program. Rosendale beat out chefs Jeffrey Lizotte (Hartford, CT) who took the silver, William Bradley (Cambridge, MA) who took bronze and Danny Cerqueda (Raleigh, NC) who came in fourth. Each chef had 5.5 hours to prepare two "protein platters," one with cod and one with chicken along with three intricate garnishes. For more info click here.
