

SO MUCH FOOD, FUN, WINE · GENERAL ADMISSION TICKETS STILL AVAILABLE · DON'T MISS IT

TOP blog
STORIES

Candy
4 Japanese
Valentine's Day
Chocolates for Guys

By Emma Courtland

Farmers Markets
What's In Season
at the Farmers
Markets: Blood
Oranges

By Felicia Friesema

By Jonathan

Contests & Competitions

Bocuse d'Or USA Winners Announced

By Amy Scattergood Mon., Jan. 30 2012 at 9:00 AM

Categories: Contests & Competitions

0

Submit

6

retweet

0

Digg ↑

The Bocuse d'Or USA competition was held yesterday at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, N.Y., to determine who will represent America in the next annual International Bocuse d'Or, held in France a year from now.

The winner? Richard Rosendale, executive chef of the Greenbrier in White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., who won with his commis, 21-year-old Corey Siegal. Second place in the competition went to Jeffrey Lizotte of Restaurant ON20 in Hartford, Conn.; William Bradley, an instructor at Le Cordon Bleu College in Cambridge, Mass., won the bronze. French chef Paul Bocuse established the Bocuse d'Or contest in 1987. American chef Thomas Keller (The French Laundry, Per Se) has been president of the American team since 2008.

